

NEPAL

After the terrible earthquake in Nepal, Paraglider pilots Jamie and Bella Messenger and the charity they support, Karma Flights Nepal, need as much help from their fellow pilots around the world as possible at the moment. Pilots are asked to open their hearts and wallets to enable their charity to bring aid to victims where they live in Nepal.

By Ruth Jessop

For those of you wondering how to help the tragic situation in Nepal, why not make a donation to the fantastic charity Karma Flights: <http://www.karmaflights.org/>

Karma flights is a team of professional paragliding pilots who provide charity tandem flights throughout the world to make a difference in the communities where they fly. In Nepal they include famous faces like Jamie and Bella Messenger.

Here is a harrowing update from Bella in Nepal:

"The mountain villages in this epicenter district have lost everything. Everything. Many villagers literally just have the wet clothes on their back and their family is under the rubble. Some of our team yesterday met two children on an unstable rubble pile trying to retrieve their dead parents from the remnants of their home. Unimaginable moments like these are being replicated over and over in this region. We will need so so much in the coming months. It's unseasonably cold here and raining a lot causing new landslides.

Please open your hearts and wallets to this cause. They need us desperately and we are personally here working with trusted local partners, to ensure your money goes directly to this most devastated and totally underserved region at the very center of the quake.

“As you give, so shall you receive”

5 days after the event, and Karma Flights are still the ONLY ones offering ground support here to these dozens of villages. Please keep sending donations friends.

PayPal : Karmaflights.org or <http://thecloudbasefoundation.org/site/donate/>

The Law of Karma: "As you give, so shall you receive"

